The above nest problem corrects J. H. Brownell, Onondaga, N. Y., in Derry New of June 24, who seeks to correct L. S. Head's criticism of the New problem No. 908. The above is formed after third move of Mr. Brownell's play, who adds: "I will say, furthermore, that I will wager Mr. Head a year's subscription to the New that his correction is not sound." We think Mr. Brownell should forward to the Wizard of Blythesdale, Pa., the amount of his wager in checker books through Mr. Stearns. His own play at fourth move is not sound, as a study of the above position will show. We have no doubt a great many of our readers will discover the neat draw. furnished Robert McCall, of the Herald, by Mr. James Mair, the celebrated Scottish expert:

"I cailed upon Mr. Freeman when in Providence, in the spring of 1891, but, as we were both limited as recards time, no playing was done. However, I saw enough of him to be deeply impressed with his style and general manner. People who imagine Freeman an African or redskin may once for all get rid of the delusion. He is a genuine American rentleman, and, if he has any of the Indian blood in his veins, it must be very infinitesimal. Freeman is not at all the typical draughtplayer. He is a brightlooking and telkative young man, a general favorite in the clubroom, ready for a game of checkers or whist, and equally at home retailing a good joke over a glass of lager and a mild weed. Not the cautious, stoild, one would almost say stupid looking, individual you expect to meet in a great draught player, to whom the world outside of draughts is a blank. But under this pleasant exterior, which, perhaps, his business requires him to cultivate, can be seen the power of concentration and steadiness of purpose which mark his playing. Like all draught players, he remarked to me that he was out of practice, which I said was a bad move, as everybody played it now; but, joking aside, I formed an impression that, if he did put himself in form, I could not think of anyone that I would care to back against him."

OHICAGO CHESS AND CHECKER CLU R. This club has the reputation of being the strongest aggregation of checker players in America, and only a visit is needed to be made consolously aware of the fact. The rooms of the club, which are very fine, are situated in the center of the finest business part of the great city, corner of Washington and La Selle streets. On entering the rooms the first thing that strikes the visiting player is the fine inlaid checker tables, of which there are four rows, the length of the rooms, with eight rows of cane bostomed chairs. The decoration of the rooms has as yet not received much attention, but we learned that it will be elsborate before the World's Fair opens. About noon the players begin to assemble and play continues on until late. The visitor can always depend on having a game in that time, Among the leading players are the following: Captain Doyle, Hefter, Denvir, Crowell, Freer, Starkweather, Slocum, Reilly, Chamber, Woodrow, Manning and a great many others that play a very strong game. The worthy President, Harvey L. Hopkins, is always around about noon, making visitors at home, with his genial countenance, and friendly interest. He seldom player, He was born in Madison county, New York State, on May IS, 1842, and the game of checkers was the first game that he ever learned to play. He was from the start, and continued to be, a checker enthusiast until he moved to Chicago in 1877. Some time thereafter he became acquainted with the Chicago players, in December, 1888, he was one of the incorporators of the Chicago Chess and Checker Club, and was elected its President: and he has been re-elected from year toyear, so that now he is serving his fourth term as President. When the ciub was organized they had 18 members. Now they have nearly 200. This certainly is a great record, and speaks volumes for the management. W. H. Graig, of Grove City, Pa., visited the city during the Fourth and made a record for himself. Mr. Craig, through the influence of The Disparon column, commenced playing the game and now he is coming to the front rapidly and will be heard from in the future. He is the owner of a large restaurant in Grove City and a great favorite with the boys of the college.

Mr. Barker, in his latest epistle, defines his position, according to a cotemporary, in the following manner:

"But, my dear sir, for once you are at fault in retrard to the stand I take between Mr. Wyllie and myself. I have fully made up my mind to play my next match, whoever it is with, in this country. I do not think any offer, no matter how fair it is, will induce me to forego this decision. The position I hold and the advice of my most carnest friends compel me to take this step. So, therefore, further challenges from foreign experts to me will be a waste of time unless they agree to come here and play. In this case I will be only too willing to accommodate them for any amount over $500.

It would be interesting to know if Mr. Barker is going to throw all the biame on the conductor of the Chronicle Thiegraph checker column for all the ungentlemanly sayings in his long letter of June 7 of 20 words on the history and character of "James Wyllie, Champion of the World."

It would appear to the casual reader that our champion has backed down from his pinnacle, and now becomes more than ever converted to the Freeman "old song." I have $500. If any one wants to play he must to the same thing.
